

I have been a N.Y. radio listener all my life. Growing up I enjoyed a variety of music formats available in my listening area. Over the past decade those choices have become limited and the opportunity to hear the variety of music I enjoyed has diminished. That is until Satellite radio became available in the last couple of years. Now I can listen to whatever music I feel like hearing at that time. I am no longer captive to the music formats set by a few large corporations that control many of the stations. The added constant traffic and weather available on satellite radio furthers my options when I am driving or in my home. I still listen to local traffic and weather on the broadcast stations but now have another option. Why would we want to limit those options available to citizens who value choice.

Please do not limit the choices and freedom of citizens across the country, allow satellite radio to continue to broadcast local traffic and weather. Let the market decide what is wanted.

Pat Lloyd
New York